Mr. Brett Waytuck,
University Librarian
University of Regina

Dear: Mr. Waytuck:

Re: Academic Unit Review

Thank you for meeting with us on Friday, September 29, 2017 to review the Unit Report and provide us with your preliminary verbal response. The exchange was fruitful and we hope that any initial impressions you received from us at the meeting will be useful as you craft your unit's written response to the report. We were pleased that the library has so enthusiastically engaged the recommendations of the unit review group. It was their view that most of the recommendations could be achieved in one to three years, something that Mr. Waytuck concurred with. CCAM also recommends that the library consult with the academy as they craft their formal response to the review. We look forward to seeing the outcome of the implementations of these recommendations.

While we do not want the written response to repeat at length the material already in the Self Study, we would appreciate if your written response would touch upon the following areas taken from the Academic Unit Review Operations Manual (OPS-130-005) when and where appropriate:

“These reviews will focus on the following areas:

- the priorities and aspirations of each unit and the extent to which they are being realized
- the challenges and opportunities faced by the unit
- the structure and quality of undergraduate and graduate programs and instruction
- the contribution of each program to related disciplines and fields of study
- the scope and significance of research being pursued
- the degree to which academic programs meet students' learning needs and goals
- the characteristics of staffing complements
- the degree to which the unit is meeting its internal and external service responsibilities

Mr. Brett Waytuck

- the role the unit plays in meeting the University's vision, mission, goals and priorities”
 - with particular attention paid to Indigenization of the unit
- the financial resources of the unit

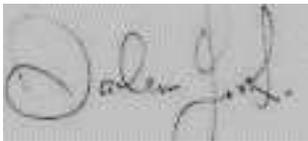

In particular, we hope your written response will provide:

- an elaboration on any report recommendations your unit disagrees with
- an itemized list of what actions your unit will take to implement the report's findings

The committee looks forward to meeting with the unit again in 15 – 18 months to discuss the health of the unit and its engagement with the recommendations of the review. In five years' time it is anticipated that the unit will submit to CCAM an update on their efforts to respond to the recommendations of the unit review group.

We look forward to your unit's formal written response.

Sincerely,
