

Craig Wilson is a television news producer and writer. He has spent most of his nearly three-decade long journalism career at CBS. He currently is the news writer for CBS News Sunday Morning with Jane Pauley and a writer for the CBS Evening News with Jeff Glor. Craig also serves as a freelance editor, news writer and producer at NBC's Today Show. He is the recipient of two Emmy Awards, two Writer's Guild of America Awards for best news writing, as well as a Society of Professional Journalists Sigma Delta Chi Winner.

Craig graduated from Columbia University in 1995 (B. A. European History). He began his career in 1988 as a reporter at CHAT TV and Radio in his hometown of Medicine Hat, Alberta, Canada.